SHIPPINGPORT, Pa. (AP) — President Eisenhower prepared today to help dedicate the Shippingport atomic power plant, the nation's pioneer venture in large-scale production of commercial electricity from the atom.

Technicians readied an electronic hookup permitting the President to activate the plant's generator by remote control from Washington.

Duquesne Light Co., a Pittsburgh utility, owns the 110-million-dollar plant jointly with the Atomic Energy Commission.

The world's first full-scale nuclear power station devoted exclusively to production of commercial electricity, it represents the greatest industrial achievement to date in America's drive to tame the atom for peace.

In operation since last Dec. 18, the plant has generated more than 32 million kilowatt hours of electricity for Duquesne Light's system, which serves 450,000 residential, commercial and industrial customers in Allegheny (Pittsburgh) and Beaver counties.

Seven Drown In Effort To Rescue Texas Child

ROCKPORT, Tex. (AP)—Struggles of a drowning child drew 10 rescuers off a sunny beach late Sunday and seven persons perished, including the little girl the others tried to save.

Also drowned were an Air Force chaplain, the little girl's mother and four other children.

The tragic sequence started after Janice Bailey, 9, stepped into a deep hole off the small public beach opposite this Texas port on the Gulf of Mexico.

Leonard Berry, 40, an Air Force priest from Syracuse, N. Y., dived for her.

The father of another child, who also drowned, and Janice's mother, Mrs. Mary Bailey, 26, followed. Efforts to help were made by several other children, including the four who went down.

Wayne Bailey, an airman from Foster Air Force Base at neighboring Victoria, Tex., was in the crowd of more than 3,000 persons who saw the bodies of his wife and daughter pulled from the water.

"That's my wife!" he cried out as Mrs. Bailey was brought ashore dead. "That's Father Berry!"

Collegians' Battle Held 'Legitimate'

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP)—The Cornell Student Council believes the egg-throwing demonstrations by students battling to keep off-campus parties reflected a legitimate protest against the university administration, the Council president said today.

University President Deane W. Malott was splashed with eggs and his home stoned early Saturday in the climax of two days of student outbreaks. Four students, including a professor's son were suspended.

Council President K. Peter Kellogg, a junior from Larchmont, N.Y., told reporters the Council felt the demonstrations represented a legitimate protest because the university:

1. Refused to give the students a chance to put into effect their own set of houseparty rules, told them to accept university-written rules or not have houseparties.
2. Banned alcohol at football games last fall without asking student opinion.

Under present university rules, men living in registered apartments off campus may entertain girls at parties, as long as at least two girls are present.

Reports that these parties would be banned, Kellogg said, led the undergraduates to believe that the pattern of not asking student opinion was repeating itself.

Living Cost Hike Blame Could Be Pure Inflation

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Who's to blame for the rise in the cost of living? Could it be you?

Management tells you it's the steady rise in labor wage scales that has brought about inevitable increases in the price of consumer goods.

Labor leaders tell you that it's management's zeal to turn in each year to the stockholders a report showing higher earnings, and in most cases, higher dividends.

Merchants say it's the customer's demand for more service, for more prepared and prepackaged goods to cut down work at home.

Economists with long memories and few political connections have argued that the price rise is pure classical inflation — the government has pumped too much money into the economy from the war years on, and prices and wages have taken the normal course: up.

A few stockholders have wondered if all the bonuses paid to top executives haven't played a part in the high cost of business operation.

But most of the time the lowly white collar worker has escaped notice.

Now some Federal Reserve Board figures raise doubts about an old theory: that the blue collar worker's wages have been soaring and the white collar salary has been lagging. Of late the effect of all this increasingly expensive paper work on total operating costs is getting a closer look in many companies.

An analysis of Federal Reserve figures by Fortune magazine, which aims largely at management readership, says that total salary payments to white collar workers has increased at a much faster pace than the more publicized ones to blue collar production workers.

The figures cited show that non production personnel — engineers, scientists, draftsmen, administrative workers — have increased 60 per cent in the last ten years and their salaries have gone from one fourth of the total manufacturing labor costs then to one third now.

The cited figures record their salary payments as rising 37 per cent in the last four years while wage payments to the blue collar workers have averaged seven per cent.

Productivity, or unit cost, is the measure of goods produced per man hour of labor. On the basis of production worker man hours, productivity has risen at an annual rate of 3.7 per cent in the last 10 years. But add in the salaries of non production workers and productivity has risen at the annual rate of 2.9 per cent.

The white collar worker has some ready answers for this. Technical advances in industry make his role ever more important. Rising living costs make salary boosts essential to maintain his standard of living. High taxes take an increasing slice of any pay raise he may have had.

And getting out of the squirrel cage — salary, prices, taxes — without lasting scars isn't easy.

Gaullist insurgency to the French mainland.

Striving to stem the tide of revolt, the government:

1. Cut off communications and supplies to the insurgents who consolidated their control of Corsica with Algeria-type public safety committees.
2. Extended censorship to all news distributed in France — whether from French territories or from abroad. The French police seized today's issue of the European edition of the New York Herald Tribune for publishing a declaration of support for the rebel generals in Algeria by Adm. Philippe Auboyneau, the navy commander in the Mediterranean.
3. Announced government officials and military personnel who took part in the Corsica uprising would be fined and jailed.
4. Asked the Assembly to order expulsion from Parliament of any deputy who works against the unity of the republic. The bill was aimed at Corsican Deputy Pascal Arrighi, who helped direct paratroopers and civilians in seizing power on the island. It could also be used against Jacques Soustelle, top Gaullist deputy who fled to take a top role in the Algeria revolt.

Pfifflin told the Assembly he was not sending new forces to maintain order in Corsica but that all "necessary" measures would be taken. This brought laughter from the rightist supporters of de Gaulle.

The rebellion spread to Corsica Saturday. Mobs led by paratroopers marched into the Plaza of

Paris Hints

French and Tunisians were scuffling with small forces. French authorities in Algeria deny the charge.

The French know as well as Bourguiba that he doesn't have the armed force to prevent the Algerian rebels from operating on Tunisian soil.

So if French troops are withdrawn from too many bases in southern Tunisia, the Algerians will make completely free use of the area, both for training and for bringing in arms from Egypt. Bourguiba apparently is aware of this, troubled by it, but unable to concede that the French stations in Tunisia are helpful to him. That, at any rate, is the French point of view.

Ajaccio, capital of the mountainous island, seized public buildings and installed their own junta.

There was no word of bloodshed.

The Corsican junta pledged support to Gen. Raoul Salan, French military commander in Algeria, and demanded installation in Paris of a de Gaulle government.

The Premier in a radio speech denounced the revolt in Corsica but said there was some emotional justification for the upheaval in Algiers.

Security forces under Interior Minister Jules Moch have been alerted all over France to nip any insurrection attempt in the bud.

Second Army Sets Program On Education

Minimum Standards For Officers And Specialists Listed

FORT MEADE, Md. (AP)—The Second Army has begun a drive to have all officers, warrant officers, non-coms and specialists meet the minimum educational standards for their grades.

To help in the program, Second Army has contracts with 75 colleges and universities in its seven-state area aimed at developing a cooperative educational system.

The action came at an Army Commander's Conference, the first since Lt. Gen. George W. Read Jr. assumed command of Second Army last October.

About 35 military commanders and advisers attended from Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio and the District of Columbia. The announcement also said greater use would be made of educational courses and tests in picking personnel for service schools and promotion, and training them for military specialties.

Those attending the conference included Maj. Gen. John L. Gryan, commanding general at Fort Knox, Ky., and Maj. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker, commanding general at Fort Hayes, Ohio.

Five Persons Die In State In Accidents

Two Others Drown In Chesapeake Bay, Road Deaths At 194

By The Associated Press

Four persons died on Maryland highways during the weekend and a 54-year-old woman died early today of injuries received in an accident May 11. This raises the State's 1958 traffic toll to 194, compared with 200 last year at this time.

Jeanette McCarthy of Parkville died in Union Memorial Hospital, Baltimore, as a result of a traffic accident earlier this month near Pikesville in Baltimore County. She suffered two broken legs and internal injuries and was in critical condition until her death.

George Nash, 17, of Hyattsville, died yesterday in Prince Georges County after his car went out of control on Landover Road in Kentland and turned over.

Two cars collided in Baltimore yesterday fatally injuring Odessa Williams, 44, of Cockeysville.

Hilson Presley, 20, Negro of Aberdeen, was hit by a car and fatally injured Saturday as he walked along U. S. 40 near Aberdeen.

Paul Leather, 42, of Baltimore died in a head-on collision in Owings Mills near Baltimore yesterday.

In a weekend drowning accident, Osceola Conway, Jr., 13, slipped from a raft into Baltimore harbor yesterday. The Negro youth was pulled from the water and pronounced dead at South Baltimore General Hospital.

Stanley Avery, 24, of Mount Rainier, Md., fell overboard and apparently drowned while fishing from a boat off Chesapeake Beach in Calvert County Saturday.

The Coast Guard was dragging the area in the Chesapeake Bay for the body. The sheriff's office said the incident happened while Avery and two others were anchored about a half mile off Shapps Island.

In a highway accident outside of Maryland, Ernest Paul Gordy of Salisbury died Saturday when his car collided with another vehicle on U.S.13.

State Police said the accident happened two miles north of the Maryland-Delaware line.

The body of James (Bud) Lawrence, 24, of Boyds, Md., was found buried in sand Saturday at Cornfield Harbor near Point Lookout in Southern Maryland.

Lawrence was one of four persons who died in a Potomac River boating accident April 16.

Port Tobacco, Md., was really named for Indian Queen Potomac. But, it sounded like Port Tobacco to early white settlers.

B. Frank Sherman, State's No. 1 Ferryman Dies; Services Tomorrow

ST. MICHAELS, Md. (AP)—Funeral services will be held here Tuesday at 2 p.m. for B. Frank Sherman, whose career as Maryland's No. 1 ferryman started with the first ferry run across Choptank Bay and ended with the last run. Burial will be at East New Market, in his native Dorchester County.

Sherman, 65, suffered a fatal heart attack early Saturday evening while driving to Chance Point at McDaniel for his traditional game of cards with several old friends. The group had met every Saturday night for about 35 years.

Sherman's career paralleled exactly the life span of ferry service across Chesapeake Bay. He joined the old Claiborne-Annapolis Ferry Co. when it was founded on June 19, 1919, first serving as ticket agent at the Claiborne terminal. Three years later he was made general manager.

He continued to head the operations of the run when the state purchased the ferry system and remained in that capacity until the system was abandoned with the opening of the bay bridge in 1952. Then he retired. He made both the first and last trips. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Sherman of Cambridge.

His father served three terms as Dorchester County sheriff. He was the founder and first president of at least three organizations—the Chesapeake Bay Fishing Fair Assn., the Talbot County chapter of the Isaac Walton League and the Historical Society of Talbot County. He served three terms as commodore of the Miles River Yacht Club here and was a member of the Chesapeake Bay Yacht Club at Easton. His business associations included serving as chairman of the (Continued on Page 8)

OUR COUNTRY

The union of hearts, the union of hands and the flag of our Union forever—Morris.

The Other Side

THE SCIENTISTS say they're learning a lot about the behavior of physical matter. Well, they have their side of it, but it's not the only one. This is the moving season. And just ask any poor chap who has just moved, or is about to. He'll tell you that "matter" can behave in some pretty exasperating ways. You're lugging a load of shiny-covered LP records out to the car. Like an armful of eels, they start to slip. You put on a burst, hoping to reach the car before they go. You miss by two feet, and now Beethoven's Fifth and Sinatra's latest have grass stains in proof that matter has its own laws, no matter what you think.

SAGGING ALMOST to the knees, you struggle out with a heavy box of books. You head for the car trunk, already well jammed. With a quick measure of the eye, you decide there's room for one more, and swing the box up and over. You should have taken another look. The thing hits the back end of the trunk. It warps and bulges out like an inflated balloon. Who dares to dig in and see what happened to the books? The floor and the seat in the back of the car are weighted with stuff. But from inside the house comes the singsong query: "Room for one more, dear?" You say you'll try. You open the door for a little survey. The place is a forest of paperboard box covers that refuse to stay down. You push one down, pin it with your elbow, reach across to flatten another. The first one gets away and smacks you in the chin. Watch that lamp shade! Even a little scuffling will mar it for life.

WITH A CLEVER body feint, you miss it as you lean down to shuffle boxes on the floor, trying to make a bit of space. But on the uptake your arm goes out of control, brushes the lamp shade against a box top to leave a dent and a dirty scuff mark. That's right, boy, rub it off with your sweaty paw and compound the felony! Let the scientists say what they will of matter, with their theories and their figures. Anybody who ever moved a stick of stuff out of his house knows you can't do a thing with it.

Save The Scenery

THE RECENT announcement by Gov. C. William O'Neill of Ohio that he would ask that state's legislature to enact a strong law banning billboard's on Ohio's part of the new Interstate Freeway System focuses attention on a problem that each state will have to face in the near future. The Federal Highway Act of 1956 offers a bonus of one half of one per cent in federal highway funds to states as an inducement to keep billboards off the system. This could amount to quite a sum, since the 13-year program in most states will be figured in the billions of dollars. But Governor O'Neill called this part of the law "weak," containing too many exceptions. Ohio—or any other state—could get the bonus by passing a mild antibillboard law, but would that be serving the public interest? This is the question that each state must decide for itself. Let us hope Ohio sets a worthy example.

Traffic Cop Aloft

THE GRIM pattern has become familiar: An airliner rumbling along on course, a military jet streaking out of nowhere, a crash that fills the sky with death and ruin. That is only part of the picture. Near-misses are reported every day. One occurred near Chicago at almost the very moment of the recent crash over Maryland. Emergency air safety measures ordered by President Eisenhower should help to prevent further such tragedies in the immediate future. Stricter control of military flights is one thing that has been needed all along. But it would be a grievous error to accept the emergency rules as any real solution. The CAA is aware of this; it has promised a long-range safety program in three months. The sooner the better. The need is great and urgent.

Demos Given Edge In Recent Voting

WASHINGTON — To say that Republicans and Democrats alike are pleased with what they themselves did in the Pennsylvania and Ohio primaries is not the whole story of last week's voting. Opportunities existed on both sides in both states for disharmony and controversial candidates. None was realized. Thus each party in each state must largely depend on its own strength.

The size of the vote cast indicates that Democrats are still doing very well in Pennsylvania, and less well in Maryland. But in Pennsylvania, for example, Representative Hugh D. Scott Jr., the only Republican in the Philadelphia city delegation, was high man on all tickets in the city voting and in the state as well. He carried all 67 counties.

THE SLATE headed by the veteran Pittsburgh Mayor, David Lawrence, for Governor and Governor George M. Leader for Senator, lost only one county and got 85 percent of the total Pennsylvania Democratic vote. The lone holdout was the home county of Lieutenant Governor Roy Furman, who ran against Lawrence. Furman is threatening to bolt, but it would hardly appear a real menace even if it materializes, and Lawrence is an old hand at harmonizing party rivalries.

Given the Democratic trend and the fact that so many Democratic votes were cast despite few contests, that party must be conceded the edge. Yet state experts regard Scott's showing as outstanding; with his experience and campaigning abilities, they expect him to give Leader trouble.

Scott is an energetic, outspoken liberal. Leader is the same, and his principal difficulty is that he was not able to fulfill the high promise he showed when he unexpectedly grabbed the Governorship four years ago.

ALL DEMOCRATS are disappointed in Harold E. Stassen's poor showing in his race for the Republican nomination for Pennsylvania Governor. They are sure Lawrence can trouble Arthur T. McConigle, the Reading pretzel manufacturer, who beat Stassen, but they would have liked to keep Stassen politically alive as a symbol of Republican opposition to Vice-President Richard M. Nixon.

New Stassen has lost his forum, though not, of course, his ambition. The current joke is that 46 states remain in jeopardy since humorless Harold has been Governor of Minnesota three times and apparently does not appeal to Pennsylvania.

The Maryland surprise is the harmony that Democrats there were able to achieve at long last. With a heavy edge in registration, they have been losing the state for years to Republican candidates of no distinction or creative energies.

But a unity slate headed by Comptroller Millard Tawes for Governor and Baltimore Mayor D'Alessandro Jr. won a clear-cut primary sweep. Tawes ran away with all the unit votes and will face the World War II Marine hero, Representative James P. S. Devereux.

D'Alessandro, a formidable vote-getter in his big city, did surprisingly well outside it for the privilege of challenging the incumbent, Senator J. Glenn Beall.

BUT BEALL is a politician of long experience and no extremist. Democrats will pretty much have to ride the trend in Maryland, hitting Beall with his party and with the President's standstill on the recession.

The Baltimore Sun editorially credits Tawes "twice over" for the "successful marriage of the machine factions in the city and county." Perhaps more will be heard from him nationally.

Another Democratic dividend was the utter defeat of an old party trouble-maker, George Mahoney, who has managed to keep others from nominations but in five tries won nothing. Mahoney issued a prompt and friendly statement conceding defeat, which is something new, too.

Glancing Sideways

NEW YORK—You get on the train at 11:24 in Sea Cliff, your wagon being at the rubber merchants to be reshod, and settle down with three New York newspapers and a grouch. You look around and every other man in the car seems to have a grouch.

Behind you, some commuter is softly whining to his plainly bored seat-mate that, "I don't get it. I don't get it at all, the committee never even asked me to play the qualifying round."

They didn't, huh? Too bad. Look, bub, I've never been asked to endorse a beer, name an airplane or ride in a road race, nor is there a sandwich bearing my name. What have you to cry about? Who asked you to take up golf? Did they point a gun and say: "Play golf!"

IN TOO LONG a time for so short a ride, you get out into the dank warrens of Penn Station and decide that the most interesting thing at hand might be to look in the windows of that cutlery shop with gadgets from all over the world. You amble slowly over and you find song writer Bob Merrill doing the same thing.

"The knife I have my eye on can stab better than the knife you have your eye on," you mutter truculently and Merrill turns in alarm. Then he laughs and says: "You feel that way, too?"

Merrill is on his way to his native Philadelphia and you decide that this is as good a moment as any to ask him what inspiration, if any, ignited him to write his newest smash hit: "After Midnight—When The Boys Talk About The Girls."

"I HEARD TWO guys in a hotel corridor," he says. "They were talking about the dates they had just escorted home. It seemed like an idea."

You don't believe him and he doesn't expect you to believe him, but it's an answer. He starts for his train and you walk as far as the gate with him, suggesting that if you'd known he was setting out on so long and arduous a trip you'd have bought him a going-away basket of fruit and champagne.

Merrill vanishes down the iron stairs and you decide that Eighth Avenue can't be any worse than the penitentiary-like structure of Penn Station.

YOU CLIMB wearily to sidewalk level and get into a cab driven by Colden Chalmers, and you say that he has an unusual name. He turns with a semi-smile and says: "What's unusual about it? It's a name." Unable successfully to debate with him, you subside into silence and, at 44th Street, you get out and walk toward Broadway.

On the concrete in front of the Shubert Theatre you see Temple Texas, a poultice to the eye, a joyous sight to behold at any and all times, and you tell her that you feel that the world needs doing over like an old room.

"You think you have complaints?" she replies. "I was supposed to go to Dallas and do 'Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter?' and now I'm not. The resident stock actress wants to do it and since she has put in five months playing leads for them she has at least a just claim. So, go cry on another shoulder."

Seeing no handsomer shoulder in sight, you bid her a reluctant farewell and plod your way to Broadway, where you find Johnny Desmond, of "Say, Darling," giving the gimmicks and gadgets in a drugstore window a jaundiced eye.

"DO YOU HATE everything in the window, or just every other item?" you ask mournfully. "It's not that it's just every item," says Johnny. "I am also rehearsing to hate everything they will have in there next week. The new things. I can hate those, too. You'll see."

You and Johnny, as dour as owls, get as far as 48th Street, when he giggles. "What's so funny?" you bark. "I am working on a joke," he said. "It just occurred to me. It isn't finished yet, but I have the raw materials. You know the jive talk: 'I dig this, I dig that, do you dig me,' all that kind of talk?"

"I was thinking what does a grave-digger say to another grave-digger? Like 'I dig these graves the most.' It's not set yet as a joke, but I'll work on it." You give Desmond the kind of look reserved for a sudden encounter with a king cobra and wish him extremely well with his jokes.

AT 52ND STREET he heads for the ANTA Theatre, his home away from home, and you wander up into 54th Street, where the parking lot man says: "What's the matter, you found a better parking lot or sun'n, you don't come in here any more?"

You tell him you parked there yesterday and the day before and so on and he cackles like an insane dotard and cries: "Yeah, yeah, but what have you done for me lately?"

You decide that to go into hiding is in order until this fell day shall have passed, so you go back to 48th Street and the cool, disciplined depths of that watering hole.

More Pretzels To Come

WASHINGTON—I'm back from poking around in Pennsylvania, one of my favorite states, and I tell you, voters, you never did see so many pretzels. Gold pretzels. Silver pretzels. Pretzel cuffs, links. And plain old pretzels that you nibble with a beer.

These all have to do with the political triumph of Arthur T. McConigle, the pretzel king of Reading, Pa., who wrested the Republican nomination for Governor from an old friend of mine, Harold E. Stassen. The latter's been running for something or other almost since the day I met him many a long year ago.

Some of Honest Harold's unhappy campaign managers claim that free pretzels beat him; wherever a voter turned up the last few weeks, seemed like, there was a bowl of salty dainties fresh from McConigle's sanitary pretzel factory.

PRETZELS made the nominee a wealthy man, but he remained relatively unknown even in Pennsylvania, except in pretzel-bonding circles, until he decided he'd like to make the try for Governor.

Pretzels may have helped him, but I don't buy the claim that they got him the nomination. The voters aren't that hungry and Stassen, of all people, ought to know it.

I remember well when Stassen was fresh from Minnesota, where he'd been one of the best Governors that state ever had, and he was making his first ill-fated try to become President of the United States.

So there he was, hopefully, in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel in the field in which Premier Nikita Khrushchev has just obtained Communist Central Committee approval for his 100-million-ruble expansion program. Russia now lags in synthetics, plastics and chemical industries.

Philadelphia, with big signs out front, waiting for the Republican National Convention to give him the nod.

INSIDE He fed the delegates with the finest of Minnesota cheese, made into sandwiches, and served by beautiful ladies from Minnesota, mostly blondes. Never before or since, have I seen so many sandwiches, so constantly replenished for the benefit of hungry delegates.

Some of these, as delegates always do, began to run out of money before the convention had reached its weary end, and it was Honest Harold's sandwiches that kept them alive and able to mark their ballots.

FOR ONE THING, McConigle and friends were gracious about Honest Harold. They never had a mean word to say about him. They didn't even mention his abortive attempt a while back to get Vice-President Richard M. Nixon dumped from the present Administration. All the pretzel people did, when ever they had occasion to mention Stassen, and that was frequently, was to call him the gentleman from Minnesota. That did it.

Few Pennsylvanians liked the idea of a gentleman from Minnesota, no matter how gentlemanly, as Governor of Pennsylvania. So they gave the nod to the pretzel-maker, and that left Stassen sitting glumly in Philadelphia without a job almost for the first time in a long career. He said he guessed he'd take up the private practice of law.

THIS SOMEHOW strikes me as unfortunate. Stassen without doubt, even by Democrats, is a right-thinking, hard-working citizen, with real ability as an administrator. He's maybe too solemn to be a good politician and possibly too starry-eyed, but somewhere in this land there must be a job suitable to his talents.

His political demise leaves pretzel panjandrum McConigle battling the Democratic nominee, the distinguished Mayor of Pittsburgh, David L. Lawrence, for election in November. It also leaves Pennsylvanians faced with a further deluge of pretzels.

THE GOLD pretzels are appearing on the bosoms of lady workers in favor of McConigle. Silver pretzels in the laps of the gentlemen are almost as numerous as the silver shoe with the hole in it, which once designated an Adlai Stevenson worker. The genuine, eatable pretzels are available almost wherever a voter finds himself. Should be a boon to the nonpartisan brewers.

Washington Scene

WASHINGTON — Rep. Herbert Covington Bonner, of North Carolina, nominated a young fellow from his district to the U. S. Naval Academy. Full of dreams of becoming a midshipman, the youth entered the prep school for Annapolis here, but after a year at Columbian Preparatory his enthusiasm for Annapolis withered.

Nineteen-year-old George E. Clark called his father, John Clark, who operates TV Station WNCT in Greenville, N. C., and argued that he wasn't cut out to be a sailor. With his parent's consent, young Clark quit Columbia and entered East Carolina College, in Greenville.

Consequently he was astounded a few days ago when he was notified that he had been accepted for Annapolis. Notification was sent simultaneously to his sponsor, Rep. Bonner, who called the lad to congratulate him.

"I CAN'T understand how I made it," the youth told his Congressman. "I never even took the examinations."

"You must have," insisted Rep. Bonner. "Maybe you've just forgotten. Try to think back."

Young Clark asked where he was supposed to have taken the exams.

"You took them at Princeton University," said the Congressman. "Don't you remember?"

"I don't remember ever being to Princeton," said the youth.

"But there can't be a mistake," pleaded Rep. Bonner. "This thing is done by an electronics machine—a giant brain. Humans in the Navy could make mistakes, but the machine couldn't."

Scientific investigation disclosed, however, that that is just what happened. The giant brain suffered a brainwave and drew the card of a nominee from Connecticut whose name, age, and main vital statistics were identical with those of the North Carolinian.

PRESIDENT Eisenhower is urging Americans to "Buy Anything" to combat the recession. I subscribe to his "Buy Now" philosophy, but I can't feel it is sound economy to just buy anything. I think we should buy shrewdly. Now is the time to load up on harpsichords and clavichords. There's never been a better buyers' market for harpsichords and clavichords than right now. The Senate has just voted to reduce the tariff on them.

Homemakers who have been denying themselves a harpsichord or a clavichord, trying to eke out a miserable existence with only a sackbut or psaltery, will undoubtedly be enraptured to learn that the duty has been slashed from 36 percent ad valorem to a mere 18 percent.

THIS PLACES the imported harpsichord and clavichord within the reach of all. It is a golden opportunity, one that the President himself shouldn't pass up. He must appreciate how rare they were. You could hardly get 'em at all, during the war.

The duty was cut in half at the personal insistence of Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks, who advised the Senate Finance Committee that the sole American manufacturer of these alluring products, who turns out about a dozen custom-made instruments a year, did not feel the need for unusual tariff protection.

That shows you the kind of meet-all-competition—don't run—winning—to-the-Government stuff a harpsichord and clavichord maker is made of. I hope it will be an inspiration to makers of the dulcimer, doodlesack and glockenspiel. If they agree to lowering of protection walls, anti-American critics no longer will be able to charge that we have become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal.

First Methodist Church Has Ground-Breaking Rites

First Methodist Church yesterday broke ground for the first phase of a $350,000-plus building project in the 1500 block of Frederick Street.

The ceremony was held on the site of the $100,000 educational building the church hopes to open by next Easter.

Participating in the actual ground breaking ceremony were Rev. Everett W. Culp, pastor, and heads of nine organizations of the congregation.

Ilaves Chambers Jr., president of the board of trustees, read the scripture and Rev. Dr. Paul Warner, Hagerstown District superintendent, read the prayer and pronounced the dedication at the ceremony.

The congregation sang "For the Beauty of the Earth," led by Mrs. Margery Chambers with Mrs. Carl Partleton as organist, during the ceremonies.

Others who took part in the ceremony were:

ground breaking were Andrew N. Phillips, building committee chairman; William Brubaker, oldest member in years; George Sullivan, longest membership in the church; and Thomas Phillips, son of Andrew N. Phillips, and youngest walking member present.

Over 200 members of the congregation attended the ceremony. In his sermon based on Verse 5 of Psalm 62, Rev. Dr. Warner said "We may expect from God protection, provision and power."

Rev. Mr. Culp termed the day an appropriate one as it was Pentecost Sunday, which marks the birth of the Christian Church, and the anniversary of the conversion of John Wesley in 1738.

The congregation will open bids June 9 on the educational building, a U-shaped structure 90 feet long and 51 feet wide.

Plans call for awarding the contract on June 13 and to have the project completed by next Easter.

Big Crowd Attends Convent Opening At SS. Peter, Paul

Several hundred members of SS. Peter and Paul Catholic Church attended yesterday's dedication of the parish's new $250,000 convent.

Rt. Rev. Msgr. J. Lawrence Kilkenny, pastor of St. Patrick's Church, officiated at the dedication. Others taking part were Rev. Lawrence P. Landrigan, pastor of St. Mary's; Rev. Marius Elsenor, OFM, Cap., pastor of SS. Peter and Paul; Rev. Francis E. Montgomery, pastor of St. Michael's of Frostburg; Rev. Sylvan Fondries, OFM, Cap., assistant at SS. Peter and Paul; Rev. Marcellus Fuller, OFM, Cap., St. Fidelis College, Herman, Pa.; Rev. Kilian Krings, guardian of SS. Peter and Paul; Rev. John U. Lyness, assistant at St. Patrick's; Rev. John T. Steeman, pastor of St. Joseph's of Midland, and Rev. Robert Kilgannon, pastor of St. Anthony's of Ridgeley.

The convent will serve as a home for the 24 Ursuline Sisters who teach at SS. Peter and Paul parochial school and Ursuline Academy.

The edifice is "small payment" indeed for the generations of devoted service on the part of these dedicated women," said Rev. John U. Lyness, assistant pastor of St. Patrick's Church, who delivered the dedication sermon.

It was two or three years after the end of the Civil War, he said, when the Ursulines came here to provide a Catholic education for children of the parish.

A Christian education, he said, offers the only way to bring virtue and religion back into the lives of the people.

Unjust agitation against Catholic education, he said, "is simply the work of the devil, who is fully convinced that the more our schools flourish the poorer his kingdom will become."

Msgr. Kilkenny, rural dean of Western Maryland, officiated at the ceremonies, assisted by Father Marius.

Rev. Thomas Aquinas, assistant pastor of SS. Peter and Paul Church, read the prayers said by the clergy who went throughout the new convent, blessing it to the service of God.

The two women board members also will participate in the two junior high school commencements on Monday, June 9. Mrs. Cook will be at Carver and Mrs. Starcher at Cresaptown.

Sewage Plant Plans Okayed

Plans and specifications for installation of a complete treatment system at Westernport have been approved by the Maryland Water Pollution Control Commission.

The system approved is designed to treat industrial wastes of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company mill and sanitary sewage from the towns of Westernport, Luke and Piedmont.

The installation is scheduled for completion and operation late in 1959 or early 1960, the commission said.

The Upper Potomac River Commission recently awarded a $2,308,254 contract for the waste treatment plant to the Carl E. Widell and Son Company of Merchantsville, N. J., and a $485,860 contract for a trunk sewer line to the Hazelwood Construction Company here.

The Lone Star was used on a flag as early as 1819 and on one designed by Joanna Troutman in 1835. It was officially adopted as the emblem of Texas in March of 1936 at Washington-on-the-Brazos.

ADVERTISMENT $1,000,000 Idea Man

MR. F. SCHIAVONE
A big, $1,000,000 idea to help speed the return of prosperity has been announced by the Aetna Finance manager here.

Throughout America, he pointed out, people are being urged to "Buy Now" and help business. The Aetna Company has set aside $250,000 cash for the people of this area. Over $1,000,000 of increased business activity would result from getting this money into immediate circulation.

Residents here are invited to apply for amounts of $50 to $1500, then spend it for needed things or to pay bills. The money may be obtained on name only, the same day.

"We don't recommend needless borrowing," said the Aetna manager, "but very often it is a sensible way to get new things or a new, fresh start." Those interested are asked to phone or see Aetna Finance, 48 N. Centre St., PA 4-6800. (Loans over $300 made under Md. Industrial Finance Act.)

How many ways
does a father
show his love?

TWO WAYS: "today" ways and "tomorrow" ways.

Everybody knows about the "today" ways. Things like trips to the zoo and a doll under the tree at Christmas. The tender hugs at bedtime. The new tricycle. The hands always ready to wipe away tears.

Few persons ever see the "tomorrow" ways. They're mostly in solemn papers, carefully put away. For example—papers that will help pay for college some day. Papers that will mean protection for her and Mother, if Daddy shouldn't always be there.

Life insurance papers. The other way a father shows his love.

Four Weekend Fatalities

CHARLESTON (AP) — Three drownings and a mishap involving a carnival worker took the lives of four West Virginians Saturday and Sunday.

The drowning victims: Douglas Theodore Martin, 27-year-old Welch car salesman and father of two, in Spice Creek near Premier in McDowell County early Sunday after his auto was involved in a collision with another.

Gary Lee Noff, 19, of Mount Nebo in Nicholas County in a farm pond in which he had gone swimming with two companions.

Ronald Lee Craig, 15, of Chesapeake, east of Charleston, who slipped into the Kanawha River from a rowboat late Saturday. He would have been graduated from a Charleston junior high school today.

State Police said that William Randall, about 23, of Clarksburg was killed Sunday at Rowlesburg in Preston County when a truck beneath which he was sleeping after working all night ran over him.

Officials said Randall had been helping dismantle a carnival which was ending a run in Rowlesburg. The truck driver was not held.

State Trooper E. H. Pettrey said at Welch that Martin's car swerved into the path of another driven by Ralph Eugene Price of Rodersfield shortly before 3 a.m. Sunday about five miles north of Welch.

Martin attempted to back up his car, and the vehicle went over an embankment into the creek. Martin was able to get out of the car, Pettrey said, but then apparently fell back into the water and drowned.

Red Pigment
In Blood To

BALTIMORE (AP) — The red pigment in human blood also appears in plants and a Goucher College professor has been granted $8,200 to study it.

The professor, Miss Helen B. Funk, will use the money from the National Science Foundation for research on the vitamins that form the pigment.

The pigment is hemoglobin. Miss Funk will study it as it appears in little bumps — nodules — on such legumes as peas, clover, alfalfa and soybeans.

What she learns in the two-year project could add to knowledge about the human blood processes. This, in turn, could help in the search for better means of combating blood diseases, such as leukemia.

Miller also was charged with assault with a deadly weapon for firing at Melvin L. Taylor, 31, of Sparrows Point, who told police he witnessed the slaying.

Miller was being held in Baltimore County jail here. Taylor told police the fatal shooting followed a dispute between Grieb and Miller over who did the most work in the shop.

Old, New Testaments Historically Correct

BALTIMORE (AP).—Dr. William Foxwell Albright of Johns Hopkins University is now convinced that the Old and New Testaments are substantially accurate historically.

Not unusual for a man who attends a Presbyterian church? Perhaps not. But it represents quite a turnaround for Dr. Albright.

"In 1919," he said, "when I went to Palestine for the first time, I was quite radical. Like many other scholars at that time, I thought the Bible was relatively worthless historically."

His former outlook was eroded away by years of research that result in 500 books, pamphlets and lectures, and dozens of archeological excavations in Palestine, Arabia and other Mideast countries.

Now, he is ending a 42-year teaching career at Hopkins. He was interviewed after he had given his last scheduled classroom lecture.

Dr. Albright, 66, is president of the International Organization of Old Testament Scholars. His list of works, honorary degrees and memberships is so long that "Who's Who in America" cuts it short, referring to more in an earlier volume.

He is perhaps best known for the work on the Dead Sea scrolls done under his direction. Multilingual, his Palestinian Arabic cannot be distinguished from a native's.

Dr. Albright is admittedly tired of lecturing to students. But he is definitely not tired of scholarly labor.

For one thing, he plans to organize an international congress at Oxford University next year in connection with the Old Testament organization he heads.

He also will write the first volume of a series of books by many authors on the Jewish religion. In addition, he expects to give occasional lectures, write articles and possibly serve as adviser to future archeological expeditions.

As he put it, "I want to spend the rest of my life working my head off."

Water Commission Opposes Merger

The Maryland Water Pollution Control Commission has gone on record as opposing merger with the Maryland State Health Department.

The motion to oppose the merger was made by George F. Hazelwood, member of the commission and chairman of the board of the Hazelwood Construction Company here, and Ernest A. Vaughn, director of the Game and Inland Fish Commission.

There have been a number of attempts to abolish the commission and to incorporate its duties in the Health Department program.

Doctors Make Disaster Call To DC Center

WASHINGTON (AP).—Twenty-six doctors jumped in their cars shortly after 8 a. m. Sunday and drove as fast as they safely could to the Washington Hospital Center.

They were taking part in a surprise mock disaster call of the District Medical Society's around-the-clock volunteer emergency service, known for short as Meds.

Each of the 46 doctors in Meds carries at all times in his car a disaster medical chest. It contains supplies for treating victims of plane crashes, fires, bombings or whatever major disasters might strike.

The doctors also carry survival kits with food, outdoor clothing, a shovel and an ax, designed to make them self-sufficient for three days.

Those doctors who were unable to take part in Sunday's mock disaster drill were either on emergency calls or had operations to perform.

Dinner Slated For Educator

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP).—Thomas W. Pyle, 70, who will retire next month as assistant superintendent of Montgomery County Schools will be the guest of honor at a dinner to be given by school administration employees and teachers at Urbana tonight.

Pyle has been connected with the county school system for 37 years. He was principal of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School when it was established in the early 1920s.

He was born in Harford County, Md., and taught there and in Dover, Del., before moving to Montgomery County where one of his first assignments was as a teacher at Poolesville.

AWARDED HUGE AMOUNT FOR WIFE'S LOVE—Dr. Lester D. Odell, right, 47, won a $490,000 judgement in Chicago against his life-long friend, Dr. Emerson McVey, 46, of Reno, Nev., who was best man at his wedding. Dr. Odell sued for alienation of affections of his wife, Elaine, 30, at left. A woman-dominated Circuit Court jury awarded the huge amount to Odell after his attorney, Sol Friedman, pleaded "You may not think a woman's love is worth $490,000, but it genuinely was to the doctor." ## Police Wounds Burglar After Car, Foot Chase

WASHINGTON (AP).—A suspected burglar was wounded by a policeman early Sunday in a back yard after an automobile chase.

The policeman pursued the man on foot over hedges and fences after the suspect's car crashed. At one point the policeman said the man shouted: "All right, go ahead and shoot."

James Tayado Houston, 30, Washington, was reported in critical condition at the Washington Hospital Center with a neck wound.

Pvt. James E. Lee of the Montgomery County police said the pursuit began after police saw an automobile speed away from the Rockville Medical Center about 1:30 a. m.

The pursuit continued into Washington and through many northwest Washington streets before the fleeing car was wrecked.

Lee said he chased Houston on foot while Police Pft. Carl Satterwhite pursued but lost a second occupant of the auto. Lee said he shot Houston when he saw something glitter in Houston's hand. A penknife was found under Houston after he fell.

Deputy Chief Edgar E. Scott, head of the detective bureau, said police found in the wrecked car a quantity of narcotics, $150 in cash, two radios and an adding machine. He said Houston, an ex-convict, is on bond awaiting trial in a house breaking case.

288,000 pounds of dynamite were used to blast a clear channel for boats in Hell's Gate in New York City's East River in 1885.

Germans Call US Cars "Street Battleships"

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP).—The Germans have a term for America's shiny, big automobiles—"strassenkreuzer," or "street battleships."

And the question that West German auto makers are asking themselves is: will their small autos continue winning market battles against Detroit's strassenkreuzer?

In 1956, the United States imported 64,140 West German motor vehicles. Last year the figure was nearly double: 114,136.

The figure has been doubling annually since 1955 and Germans are hoping the same thing will happen this year and the next, and the next. Recent Detroit declarations that American autos will

Open Ditch Issue Raised By Resident

Buchholtz Defends Expenditures In Sixth Ward Work

Street Commissioner William H. Buchholtz rose to defense of his department's expenditures in South End (Sixth Ward) today in replying to a charge by a Wempe Drive resident who appeared in regards to an open sanitary sewer and rodent problem.

Gordon Griffin, 19 Wempe Drive, said rats were returning to the area and the stench is back as a result of an open sanitary sewer running into a ditch. He said it is time that a sewer be installed and then added: "It seems like the city has money for every place but the Sixth Ward."

Better Than Normal Apple Crop Forecast

No Frost Damage Reported So Far In Appalachian Belt

WINCHESTER, Va. (AP) — Not a bumper crop, but average to a little above. That's the story you hear most up and down the four state Appalachian apple belt.

Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania produce an average crop of 20,757,000 bushels. Apple circles say it looks like average production this year, or possibly just a little above.

Last year the belt produced 20,270,000 bushels.

Growers who care for their crops properly are expected to have good quality apples. There has been no frost damage.

Conditions Favorable

This makes for good quality and a good finish. Good foliage adds to these qualities. And there's plenty of good foliage in the wake of heavy spring rains.

Though they make ideal growing conditions, the rains have given rise to some concern over pollination of some varieties. This applies particularly to some late fall varieties in the southern part of the belt, as rain fell during the blooming period.

But the picture is not completely clear. Apple circles indicate that pollination has been the determining factor between an average to good crop and bumper production. It's still too early to be fully accurate in assessing crop prospects.

Good Bloom

In West Virginia sources at the University experiment station at Kearneysville say there was a moderate to good bloom. They add there were relatively poor conditions for pollination and fruit yet but prospects are for an "average to good" crop.

Staymans are reported setting the poorest in West Virginia. Yorks are not setting as good as normal, but a good crop is expected. Delicious, on the other hand, are reported set very well. The same is true of Rome and Golden Delicious.

West Virginia produces an average of 4,072,000 bushels. Last year production was 5,000,000.

West Virginia had 12,000 bushels in storage at the end of April, compared with 37,000 at the end of March and 4,000 at the end of April, 1957.

Peach prospects in the four-state area this year are excellent. Orchardists have a big thinning job on their hands.

George Firm Low Bidder On FSTC Job

Nearly $1,000,000 Involved In Lab School, Dining Hall

The George Construction Company was the low bidder on both the laboratory school building and dining hall which are to be constructed for Frostburg State Teachers College.

The local firm bid $619,387 on the laboratory building and $380,138 on the dining hall. The only other bidder on the two projects was the John I. Vandergrift Company of Cumberland. The Vandergrift firm bid $627,827 on the laboratory building and $418,297 on the dining hall.

It is the third time bids have been asked on the two buildings as the previous bids were rejected as being too high.

The new bids are based on revised drawings of the two structures and are slightly lower than the ones which were received earlier this year.

Action on the bids is expected to be taken in the near future.

The architect for the laboratory building was E. Jerome O'Connor and the engineer was the firm of Green and Associates of Baltimore.

Walton and Madden were the architects on the dining hall and J. L. Faissant and Associates did the structural engineering and H. Walton Redmile and Associates did the mechanical engineering.

The Walton and Madden firm did some architectural work for the Allegheny County Board of Education on school projects here.

Boden Gets Prison Term Of Two Years

Harry Calvin Boden, Rockwood, Pa., was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary and fined $500 this morning in Somerset County Circuit Court.

Boden was charged with being an accessory after the fact in the fire-death of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Mary (Growth) Boden last November 17.

The disposition of the case this morning closed a case which was broken by an undercover agent for the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

Boden's brother, Melvin Boden, was convicted of first degree murder in the slaying of his wife and is serving a life sentence. An appeal is pending in the State Supreme Court.

Last Friday Harry Boden entered a plea of guilty to the charge and District Attorney Frank A. Orban Jr. accepted the plea.

Judge Thomas F. Lansberry passed sentence on the man this morning.

The case was broken when Antonio Aurigena, the agent for the fire underwriters, was committed to the Somerset County Jail on a fake charge and for three days last January occupied the same cell as Melvin Boden.

The agent testified at his trial that during his stay in jail the man related to him details of the fire-death.

According to testimony, Melvin set the fire by igniting a mixture of hair dressing and alcohol in an ash tray and placing it on his wife's abdomen while she was sleeping on a bed.

Show Worker Crushed By Big Trailer

Accident Termed Unavoidable By W. Va. Authorities

A carnival worker was crushed to death under the wheels of a tractor-trailer yesterday morning in Rowlesburg, W. Va.

West Virginia State Police identified the victim as William Randall of Clarksburg, an employee of the G&B Rides Company. Authorities said Randall had worked through Saturday night helping to tear down the equipment of the firm that had been used during a carnival last week.

Crawled Under Rig

Randall and other workers had been gathered around a bonfire when it started to drizzle rain, police said. Investigation disclosed that Randall had crawled beneath the trailer rig loaded with a ferris wheel to get some sleep.

The driver of the rig informed police that he drove to another section of the carnival grounds at about 7:30 a. m. and was unaware the wheels of the trailer had passed over Randall's body until he returned to the site to check on some equipment.

Chest Crushed

The wheels had passed over Randall's chest and legs, and death was believed to be instantaneous. Frank Pitt, Preston County coroner, investigated, along with Trooper W. Z. Soaks of the Kingwood detachment of West Virginia State Police and Sheriff C. S. Harriman.

Authorities said no charges have been preferred and ruled the death was an unavoidable accident.

The body has been returned to Clarksburg. Randall had been employed by the rides concern only about 10 days, police said.

City To Check Street Plan Of Thruway

Clarification On Maryland Avenue Status To Be Made

Police and Fire Commissioner William W. Keegan asked for clarification today of a report that plans for the Cumberland Thruway would make Maryland Avenue "a dead-end street."

Keegan said residents and business establishments in the area are concerned over the report.

City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum is hospitalized in Baltimore and the assistant in the department, Charles R. Searell, is on vacation but Mayor Roy W. Eves said he will check and "let council know what the score is."

Plans Not Definite

Eves said plans are not definite, the last date on plans before council was October 1956 and that may not be the most recent set of plans.

He said in all probability it may be one or two years before that section of the Thruway project is undertaken.

Keegan said he could not see why Maryland Avenue should be a dead-end and Commissioner John J. Long added that since council is representing the people, every one should know just what the plans are.

In routine actions, council authorized a number of payments including the following:

Payments Authorized

$80 to Richard Manthey representing half the cost of pipe and labor for improving a portion of Michigan Avenue. Manthey paid the other half.

$7.70 to Mrs. Charles E. Troutman, 131 Pearl Street, for payment in error of sewage treatment fee. The property is on a septic tank.

$2,200 to the Treasurer of the U.S. for additional work on the Baltimore Street West Side approach as a result of undermining.

$76.50 to The Daily Record Company for copies of briefs filed in the Ridgeley athletic field land case for flood control.

Council received a check for $3,500 from the C&A Gas Company representing the 1958 franchise fee paid by the company. The check was referred to City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson and City Attorney Thomas B. Finan for channelling to the proper account.

Checks were ordered issued to city employees Thursday for the last two weeks of the month.

Damage Case Set Tomorrow

A pre-trial conference was held today in Allegheny County Court House in preparation for the damage suit scheduled tomorrow in the case brought by Philip T. Christ, administrator of the estate of Mrs. Patricia Trenton, his daughter, against Raymond J. Wempe.

Mrs. Trenton was fatally injured when a car driven by Wempe struck a tree on U. S. Route 219 a short distance from the intersection of the road with U. S. Route 40 at Keyser Ridge.

The crash, which occurred about a year ago, resulted also in injuries to Wempe and Mrs. Trenton's daughter, Cynthia, who was 11 years old at the time.

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris will preside at the trial which will be heard before a jury. Harry I. Stegmair is attorney for Christ and he will be assisted by Paul Berman, noted Baltimore trial lawyer. Attorneys for the defendant are W. Earle Cobey and William H. Geppert.

Meeting Set On Fireman, Police Pay

Council Considers Another Request From Local 812

The Police and Firemen's Welfare Association and the Mayor and Council meet next Monday at 1:30 p. m. to discuss the association's request for a pay increase.

The association asked for the meeting in a letter to council today and added that the two departments had requested pay boosts for three years without action.

Council also has under consideration a request from Local 812, Municipal Employees Union, for pay increases.

Janitor Named

In other action today, council named Robert Thomas Fleckenstein, 123 Independence Street, as janitor at the Police Department at a salary of $234.50 a month.

William H. Divilbiss was confirmed as a regular member of the Fire Department.

Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn made a report to council concerning a proposal to install a traffic light at the intersection of North Mechanic and Henderson Avenue as a method of solving traffic problems involving the Henderson Avenue bridge. The suggestion was made last week by Paul A. Martin, 42 Thomas Street.

Sign Not Allowed

Flynn said the trouble could be eliminated by a stop sign on the bridge but the federal road agency will not allow a sign to interfere with federal traffic. He said if the light is placed there, it will cost between $750 and $1,000 and the department does not have that amount in its budget.

The State Roads Commission is believed receptive to the light idea and Flynn said he recommended it as the only answer.

Council Plans Study Of Gift Of Reservoir

The Allegheny County Board of Commissioners today officially offered the city the old reservoir located on county farm property off Holland Street.

Commissioner James Orr appeared before council to see if the city is interested. The county plans to destroy the reservoir, otherwise, he said.

Council voted to have Street Commissioner William H. Buchholtz and the Recreation Department investigate and make a report next Monday. It was suggested that the reservoir area and adjoining city-owned park area could be used for recreation purposes.

Commissioner William V. Keegan said he had intended to ask council to take over the reservoir and said the cost would be small compared to what the city would receive in return. He asked for and was assured of "county's cooperation by Orr.

Commissioner John J. Long expressed thanks of the council to the county board in urging that a report be made.

Mrs. Bruce Douglas, 1607 Holland Street, said the reservoir is a hazard to the neighborhood as it exists and she also suggested that the city park area be cleared.

Woman Injured In Area Crash

Patricia D. Johnson, 27, of Roberts Street, Westernport, was released from Sacred Heart Hospital this morning where she was admitted early yesterday following a two-car accident in Cresapstown.

Maryland State Police said she received lacerations of the forehead when her car apparently crossed the center line of the highway and struck the left rear fender of another automobile.

The collision occurred as the Westernport woman was driving south. David Chester Beard, 19, of 442 North Mechanic Street, operator of the second vehicle which was northbound, was unhurt.

Trooper L. W. Lewis investigated.

At Police Headquarters several officers pitched in a few pennies and chewing gum and within an hour Officer Andrews and Det. George Furstenberg had located the father, Richard Higgs, of 34 Howard Street.

Kansas All-American Will Chamberlain, who announced he was quitting college basketball in the current issue of Look, revealed today that during the recruiting scramble he was told North Carolina State might consider breaking the color line with him.

"A pro coach told me that Everett Case, the coach of North Carolina State, said he might consider trying to break the color line with me if I was interested," declared Chamberlain in his copyrighted Look article.

"I wasn't," said Chamberlain. A Missouri alumnus also asked him, stated Chamberlain in the magazine article, if he'd like to be the first Negro to play at Missouri.

"I told him I'd rather be the second," said Chamberlain. An experience with segregation at a Dayton hotel, declared Chamberlain, decided him against going to Dayton University, although he had seriously considered enrolling there.

The alumni or official representatives from more than 200 colleges, according to Chamberlain's Look article, approached him with a variety of offers while he was still in high school. Seventy-seven of these colleges were in the big-time basketball category.

"Some Southern schools got in touch with me," Chamberlain said, "before they realized my color."

Giants' Strong Pitching Making Threat 'Real'

Double Win Over Bucs Makes Lead 2 1/2 Games

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

The San Francisco Giants used power at home to make their fast start, and now they're using pitching on the road to convince National League rivals that their pennant threat is "the real thing."

The amazing Giants achieved their strongest position in more than a decade for this stage of a season when they swept the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-2 and 6-1, yesterday and rebuilt their lead to 2½ games. The Giants now have won nine of 13 games on their current Eastern trip and have an overall 13-5 record on the road.

A crowd of 35,797 saw a near free-for-all develop in the fifth inning of the opener when Giant pitcher Ruben Gomez and Pittsburgh manager Danny Murtaugh took menacing positions. The trouble, which started in the fourth inning when Gomez hit Bill Mazeroski with a pitched ball, was quickly stopped.

Gomez, none the worse for the incident, went all the way with a nine-hitter to win his fifth in eight decisions and then Ramon Montant, who won only three games all last season, also pitched a nine-hitter for his fourth victory. The Giants broke a 2-2 tie in the seventh inning of the opener on Jim Davenport's double and singles by Willie Kirkland, Willie Mays and Orlando Cepeda. A three-run sixth-inning rally snapped a 1-1 tie in the nightcap.

The Milwaukee Braves split a doubleheader with the Chicago Cubs and the St. Louis Cardinals divided with the Cincinnati Reds in other N. L. games. In the American League, the New York Yankees whipped the Cleveland Indians, 6-3 and 6-1, the Detroit Tigers beat the Washington Senators, 7-2 and 6-3, the Chicago White Sox won, 4-3, after bowing to the Boston Red Sox, 6-3, and the Kansas City Athletics shut out the Baltimore Orioles, 4-0.

Rush Wins Nightcap
Taylor Phillips pitched a six-hitter to give the Cubs a 1-0 victory in their opener but Bob Rush's eight-hitter enabled the Braves to win the second game, 5-2. John Goryl doubled the first game's only run to third base in the third inning and Wes Covington's two-run homer was the big blow of the nightcap. Phillips and Rush switched teams in a much-criticized winter deal.

Light-hitting Roy McMillan knocked in three runs with a single and double to lead Harvey Haddix and the Redlegs to 7-3 second-game victory after Jim Brosnan, acquired from the Cubs last week, won the opener, 4-2. Frank Barnes and Bill Wright finished up for the Cardinals after Brosnan was twice felled by line drives.

Whitely Ford pitched a six-hitter and Yogi Berra hit a three-run homer in the opener for the Yankees and then three-run homers by Elston Howard and Enos Slaughter helped Johnny Kucks to his third win. Ryne Duren finished up the nightcap for the American League leaders, striking out four batters in 2½ innings. The sweep increased the Yankee lead to nine games.

Senators In Cellar
The Tigers dumped the Senators into the cellar as Jim Bunning won his first game since opening day and Hank Aguirre won his first start of the year. Frank Bolling and Charlie Maxwell knocked in two runs each in the first game and Al Kaline paced Detroit's 10-hit attack in the second game with a double and homer. The Senators have lost nine of 13 games since May 8 when they were challenging the Yankees for first place.

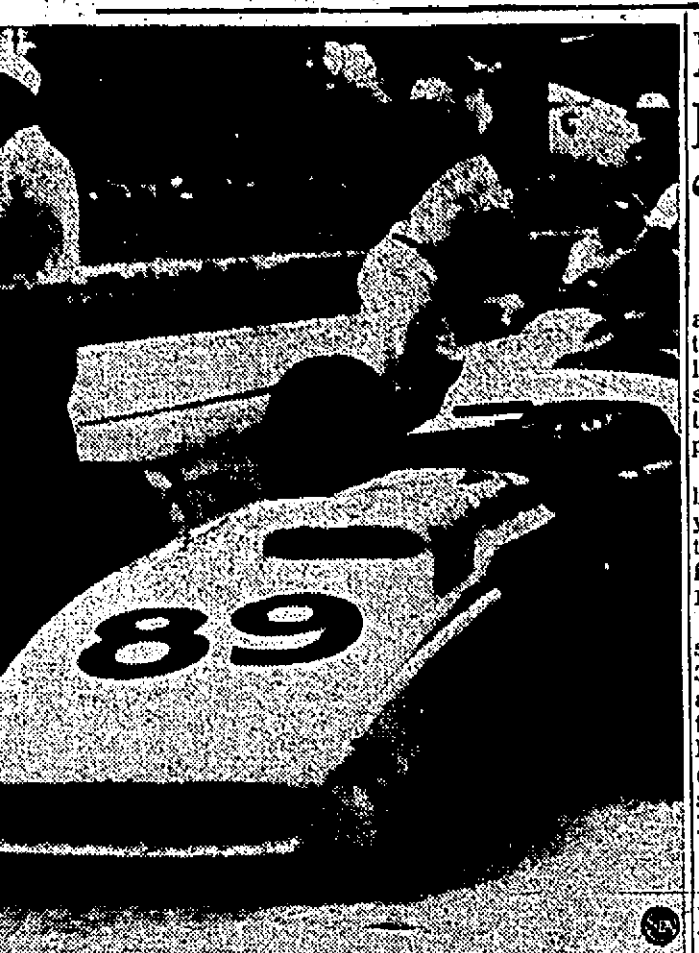

The Red Sox belted Dick Donovan for five runs in four innings, including Ted Lepore's three-run homer as Frank Baumann won his second game but then Luis Aparicio's ninth-inning run-scoring single enabled the White Sox to gain a split. Billy Pierce won the second game for the White Sox, his second victory against four losses.

Ned Garver, A. L. "comeback kid of the year" so far, pitched his third shutout and sixth win, a two-hitter. Two walks and singles by Bob Cerv, Bill Tuttle and Whitely Herzog produced three Kansas City runs in the first inning and routed Milt Pappas.

Yonkers Raceway Boasts Another First

YONKERS, N. Y. — (NEA) — Yonkers Raceway comes up with another first with the purchase of a revolutionary video tape recorder for film patrol. The device will instantaneously reproduce a perfect picture of every race so that the judges can immediately determine whether any type of foul was committed. The call of the race will be recorded on the same tape for better identification. The trotting track will introduce the recorder upon completion of new and greater facilities for the opening, Aug. 1. The cost of installing it will be $100,000.

Dan Hodge, Wichita amateur heavyweight boxer, was a member of the 1952 and 1956 Olympic wrestling teams.

BRACING POINT?—It looks as though Chuck Weyant made a mighty sudden stop on the Indianapolis Motor Speedway in an elongated number 89. Actually, the hood of the car was removed by mechanics making an adjustment of the engine. This set Weyant up for the 500-mile race Friday.

Eight Newcomers To Drive In Indianapolis '500' Race

By DALE BURGESS

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—The 33 fastest drivers in the Indianapolis Motor Speedway's long history will wheel their glittering racers onto the old brick and asphalt track Friday for the start of the 42nd 500-mile auto race.

The 33 drivers' average qualifying speed was 143.272 m.p.h. It beat the 1956 record of 142.507 set when rules permitted engines almost 10 per cent bigger than the present limit of 256 cubic inches of piston displacement.

Eight newcomers made the line-up in two weekends of time trials that ended Sunday—but veterans will fill the first three of the three-car rows and defy the rookies to pass them.

Drives Two Cars
Dempsey Wilson, a 31-year-old veteran of 12 years' experience on other tracks, had to make trial runs in two cars before he got one fast enough to stay in the lineup. He made it in the last hour with a Sorenson Special.

The only other driver who finished his 10-mile trial run Sunday as one of the best 33 was Bill Cheesbourg of Tucson, Ariz., who qualified for his second start in a powerful Novi V-8. Cheesbourg's car is a twin to the Novi which Grandpa Paul Russo, oldest man in the field at 44, qualified last weekend for his 12th start. He has been second twice but never has won.

Johnnie Parsons of Van Nuys, Calif., winner of the rain-shortened 1950 race, was the only former Memorial Day champion in the field. He'll start from the second row in a Gerhardt flat-engine job that was the sixth fastest qualifier.

23 Youngest Driver
A. J. Foyt of Tucson, 23, is the youngest driver in this year's field. His 12th place start is the highest for a rookie. He will be a definite contender in the rebuilt Dean Special, winner of the new 500-mile race at Monza, Italy, last year with Jimmy Bryan at the wheel.

Bryan, AAA and USAC national big car champion three of the last four years, will start in seventh position in the horizontal-engine Beal Special in which Sam Hanks won last year's 500. It will be the 31-year-old Bryan's seventh Memorial Day start. He has been rated the man to beat since he signed to drive Sandy Beland's proven vehicle.

Other veteran contenders will include Tony Bettenhausen, who has been in the big race 11 times; Jim Rathmann, runner-up last year, a starter eight times; Roger Ward, seven times; and Jimmy Reece, Don Freeland and Eddie Johnson, five times.

League Action May Cool Off 'Duster Duel'

By JOHN CARROLL

PITTSBURGH — (UPI) — It appeared almost certain today that nothing short of official league action would cool off a sizzling "duster" duel between the Pittsburgh Pirates and the possetting San Francisco Giants. The latest bad-blood incident between the two clubs occurred yesterday at Forbes Field where the Giants swept a doubleheader from the Pirates, 5 to 2 and 6 to 1.

But the thing that sent the season's biggest home crowd of 35,797 fans into near frenzy was a blow-up in the fifth inning of the opener when Pirate manager Danny Murtaugh and Giant pitcher Ruben Gomez squared off in a bat-wielding, fist-swinging melee.

Law Fires At Gomez
It started after Gomez, long a target of duster-pitch accusations by players around the league, hit Pirate second baseman Bill Mazeroski on the left arm in the fourth inning. Mazeroski had lifted his arm to protect his head.

When Gomez came to bat an inning later wearing only a regulation cap, plate umpire Frank Dascoli ordered him back to the bench to get a protective helmet. Then Vernon Law, who was struck on the head by one of Gomez' pitches last fall, fired a fast ball high and on the inside that sent the batter sprawling.

Dascoli went to the mound to warn Law and Murtaugh charged from the Pirate dugout to intercede for his pitcher. On the way, he shouted a remark to Gomez, who in turn allegedly made "an uncomplimentary gesture" in Murtaugh's direction.

No One Connects
The Pirate manager turned on his heels and raced toward Gomez with fists clenched as Giant coach Herman Franks and Pirate catcher Danny Kravitz tried to restrain him. Murtaugh threw one punch, but missed and Gomez swung his bat twice but wasn't in range.

Meanwhile, players poured off both benches and converged at home plate in one pushing, tugging and swinging mass. Not a blow connected. Gomez was "dear" of his bat by an unidentified Giant, but his roommate and close friend — first baseman Orlando Cepeda — ran toward the Giant but rack to obtain another.

Cepeda was brought down by Willie Mays' flying tackle and the ruckus was quelled after Murtaugh was thumbed out of the game.

The feud started earlier this month when the Pirates paid their first visit to the West Coast. In the Giant series, pitcher Ronnie Kline was forced out of one game when hit on the hand by reliever Marv Grissom and catcher Hank Foiles was sidelined for two games after being struck on the arm by a Gomez delivery. Raydon was warned on two occasions for low-bridging Mays.

Washington-Lee High Wins Rowing Title

ARLINGTON, Va. — (UPI) — Eight sturdy Washington-Lee High School oarsmen dreamed today of becoming the first American public high school ever to crash England's famed Henley regatta next July.

The Generals earned the honor Saturday with a come-from-behind win in the American Scholastic eight-oared Rowing Championship on the Schuylkill River at Philadelphia for their second straight national title and Stotesburg Cup. It was Washington and Lee's sixth American championship in the past 11 years.

"He's the same old Campy and man, I never spent a more pleasurable three hours in my life," said the veteran pitcher.

Three More Advance In Spring Tourney

Bob Garner advanced in the third flight of the men's spring handicap tourney at the Cumberland Country Club yesterday with a 7 and 5 win over "Bud" Freedman. In fifth flight matches, Glenn Wright defeated William Seasholtz, 3 and 2, and Dr. Milton Granet eliminated Capt. R. A. Clarke, 1 up in the 21st hole.

Barrelville Extends Pen-Mar Win Streak

The unbeatable combination, good pitching and lusty hitting, again paid off for the undefeated Barrelville Old Exports in the Pen-Mar Baseball League yesterday afternoon.

Manager "Buck" Florita's Bombers ran their string to five as Bobby Raines blanked Mt. Savage, 9-0, on a six-hitter at Barrelville. It was the second win for Raines who, along with righthander Jesse Markley, has accounted for all the Barrelville triumphs. Saturday it was Markley who set Wellersburg down, 4-3, for his third victory. The two moundmen have both gone the distance in their victories while Barrelville has slipped into a one-game lead over runnerup Hyndman's Merchants.

Salisbury Loses First
Salisbury was knocked from the undefeated ranks yesterday as Wellersburg turned back the Penny entry, 3-1, on the losers' diamond while Hyndman, last year's pennant winner, moved in to second place when its game with Grantsville was postponed because of wet grounds.

Zihlman's Zippers cracked the win column for the first time with a 6-4 victory over Flintstone on the losers' field. Raines, the former Bruce High mainstay, scattered a half-dozen hits and mowed down 10 on strikeouts, giving him 23 in two games.

He was given solid hitting support by his mates who belted the slants of Ed Dickel and "Ace" Fazenbaker for 11 safeties. "Pooch" Lewis socked a triple, George McGregor and Harold Henderson smacked doubles, Ronnie Cage collected two singles and Leroy Morris drove in four runs.

The Old Exports punched over seven of their runs in the first three innings and added the last two in the fourth and fifth. "Bubbles" Thompson paced the Old Germans with a double and single while Arch Lennox clouted a double and featured in the field with a running catch of George McGregor's bid for an extra-base hit to deep left.

Loibel Wins Duel
Jerry Loibel and Jim Robertson hooked up in a mound duel with Loibel getting the nod as Salisbury fell for the first time. Both tossers gave up six hits and fanned three.

Wellersburg cracked a 1-1 tie in the fifth on singles by Jim Morgan and "Sonny" Glass, a hit batsman and an outfield error. The insurance tally came across in the eighth. Ronnie Neubiser of the winners and Fred Harris of Salisbury collected two hits apiece.

Zihlman broke a five-game losing streak in turning back Flintstone. Lefty Bill Haberlein held Flintstone to six hits, fired the third strike past nine batsmen and won his own game in the top of the ninth when he poked a two-run double over the left fielder's head.

Flintstone held a 4-1 lead until

Carter President Of Pro Bowlers
SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP) — A professional Bowlers Assn. has been formed and the list of charter members reads like a Who's Who of bowling.

Don Carter, World Invitational and National Match game champion, was elected president. Other big names are Bill Welu, Steve Nagy and Buzz Fazio, all of St. Louis, and Allie Brandt of Lockport.

About 100 of the nation's top pro bowlers, here for the Masters Tourney in the American Bowling Congress, met late Saturday night and early Sunday morning.

Buckhannon Club To Beat In Tourney

PARKERSBURG (AP) — Buckhannon stood out today as the team to beat for the West Virginia high school baseball championship in the state tournament starting here Thursday.

The Buck-ups, coached by the veteran Frank Foola, own the most impressive record of any of the eight regional titlists competing in the three-day event. They also are the only entry in this year's tournament who made it to the state finals last year.

The eight-team field was completed Saturday when three regional championships were decided. Stonewall Jackson, the team which bounced defending state champion East Bank out of contention, whipped South Charleston, 2-0, at Charleston for the Region 7 crown.

Clear Fork buried Orlinton, 21-1, for Region 5 honors at Beckley, while St. Marys clipped Ripley, 7-4, for the Region 2 championship at Parkersburg.

Buckhannon will lay its 17-0 record on the line against Baywood Union (11-2) at 1 p.m. Thursday to get the proceedings under way in the single-game elimination tournament. Stonewall (15-4) will play Marlinsburg (10-3) in the other afternoon game. Thursday's first round play will be completed with two night games which will pit Clear Fork (12-1) against Gary (7-3) and Logan (11-5) against St. Marys (7-3).

The four winners will meet in semifinals games Friday night with the championship tilt set for Saturday afternoon.

JACK PETRY WINS MEMORIAL TOURNEY

Jack Petry, principal of Lonaconing Valley High, paced a field of 39 players yesterday with a net score of 37-77-70, par for the course, to win the Jack Morrin Memorial trophy golf tourney at the Somerset (Pa.) Country Club.

Petry, a native of Salisbury, Pa., is a member of the Somerset Country Club where Steve Gaydos is pro. The tourney is held in memory of Jack Morrin, popular member of the club who died about five years ago after suffering a heart attack while playing over the Somerset course.

LAUNCHED BY THE SHOUT OF BULLY BOB TURLEY, THE YANKEES ARE ALREADY CLEAR OUT OF THIS WORLD

GoodPitching Keeps Birds From Cellar

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles, thanks to their usual excellent pitching, are still only two games out of second place in the American League race for runnerup spot behind the high flying New York Yankees.

True, the Birds are only one game out of last place in the seven-team battle for second place, but things could be a lot worse if it weren't for the pitching.

The Baltimore staff has given up only 98 earned runs in the first 31 games, or just a shade better than three per contest. But the hitting and fielding departments have been disappointing.

Battling Majors' Worst The team batting average stands at .235—the worst in the major leagues—with only 94 runs (earned and unearned) tallied. Even last year's team, considered a bit weak at the plate, managed a .252 mark to finish tied for fifth in the league.

Even more surprising has been the fielding, one of the strong points of the 1957 team.

In the latest league averages, Baltimore ranked sixth. Last season, the Orioles played 80 games without an error to set a major league mark and wound up second in the loop.

Oriole pitchers gave up only eight hits yesterday, but it was the same old story on offense. Kansas City won 4-0 on Ned Garver's two-hitter as Baltimore lost its fourth straight and seventh in 10 games on the present road trip.

Sixth Oriole Shutout

The shutout was the sixth of the year for the Orioles—also the top mark in the major leagues.

Mill Pappas, 19-year-old pitcher who returned to action after being out with an injured elbow, said his arm felt good but his fast ball came in straight as an arrow.

As a result, Pappas was bumped for three hits and three runs in the first inning. George Zuverink and Charley Beamon held the A's to one run and five hits the rest of the way, but the damage had been done.

The two clubs conclude their two-game series today, with Connie Johnson (1-3) scheduled to pitch for the Orioles against Ralph Terry (2-3).

Despite their recent slump, Baltimore is still ahead of its 1957 won-loss pace. On this date a year ago, the Orioles had a 13-20 record and were in seventh place 10 games out of the pace. Even with the Yankees' great 25-6 start this season, the Orioles are only 11 games back with a 14-17 mark.

At least 20 four-man golf teams will compete for the honors on the par 7, 6,200-yard Parkersburg Country Club course. Parkersburg, the defending champion, is expected to have a rugged opposition from Sistersville, Stoneville, Jackson and Morgantown, a m o n g others.

Moore Aims For All-Time Knockout Record Tonight

By The Associated Press

Old Archie Moore will try to set an all-time knockout record tonight in San Francisco when he faces 30-year-old Charlie Norkus in one of the week's most interesting boxing matches. Moore, who claims to be 41 although the Ring

Record Book lists him at 44, has piled up 126 knockouts in a career dating back to 1936. That matches the mark set by the late Young Stribling during the period from 1921 to 1933.

Although Moore still holds the world light heavyweight (175 pounds) title, he hasn't been close to the weight in recent months. In his last three fights he weighed 155½, 166½ and 201½.

Archie had to settle for decisions in his last two scraps, outpointing Willie Besmanoff and Howard King. In 1958 he has scored knockouts in Brazil, Vancouver, British Columbia and San Bernardino, Calif.

Bobby Scanlon, a baby faced lightweight from Buffalo who won fights out of San Francisco, risks his unbeaten record against Bobby Rogers of Chicago in a 10-round match at the Chicago Stadium on Wednesday. Scanlon has won 27 of 28 fights. The other was a draw. Rogers has a 14-4-3 record for 21 bouts.

The Friday show comes from Miami Beach where Ellsworth "Spider" Webb, high-ranked middleweight from Chicago, will try to bounce back from a defeat by Holly Mims. Webb's opponent will be Jimmy Beecham, a Philadelphia boxer who had won, lost and fought a draw in three 1958 starts against Willie Vaughn.

Sugar Ray Robinson and Rocky Graziano again are slated to work in the corners at St. Nicholas Arena on Monday night. Robinson will second Otis Woodard of New York and Graziano will work with Eddie Andrews of Lowell, Mass., in a 10-round rematch of their April 14 struggle, won by Woodard.

Vossler Wins Kansas City

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Ernie Vossler, a friendly 29-year-old pro from Midland, Tex., thanks his new putter and new eyeglasses for his first major golf tournament victory.

Ernie purchased the putter and the specs about six weeks ago. He's been making money ever since. A 19-under par 269 won first place for Vossler in the $22,500 Kansas City Open, completed Sunday. The triumph was worth $2,800.

Vossler shot the final round over the 6,668-yard Hillcrest Country Club course in 33-34—67. That was five under par and more than enough to withstand second place Billy Maxwell, of Odessa, Tex., who shot 68 for a 272 total.

After Maxwell came Lionel Herbert, the PGA champion from Lafayette, La., with 69 and 274. Gary Player, the classy youngster from Johannesburg, South Africa, got around in 33-37—70 and finished fourth with 275.

Talking About Yankees ...

Forget About '58 Race, Get Talent For Future

By JIMMY BRESLIN
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (NEA)—There are two ways to talk about the Yankees who seem to have the American League in shambles already.

One is to be a New York pitcher relaxing in a hotel room.

"It's bad enough," he was saying, "that we have all the players. What makes it worse for the other teams is that they press so bad against us. They have stopped thinking about how to do it. I mean, you take the game we play in Chicago."

"Jim Rivera gets to first base and Ron Jackson is up. We try to pick Rivera off first. He is three runs behind and he is taking big leads. Well Marv Throneberry at first drops the throw. The ball goes a couple feet past him."

Not Much Of A Season "What does Rivera do? He starts for second. Marv picks up the ball and throws him out. Then Jackson hits the wall in left but nobody was on base. They're three runs behind and they gamble to take one base. It's like the minor leagues. You have good hitters on the other clubs. But none of them is bunched up. You got one or maybe two on a club. So you don't give them anything. Then get the rest of the club out one-two-three and go home. I don't think this will be much of a season. But I love every minute of it."

The other way is to be Frank Lane, general manager of the Cleveland Indians, who is on the telephone when he isn't being forced to watch his team play.

"For the immediate problem," he snaps, "I can't see the Yankee pitching holding up like it has been. Nobody can be that good. But the bigger worry is the future. We can't let it go on like this. You've got people from the other clubs sitting around and saying, 'Break up the Yankees.' Fact, that's what I thought you were calling about. Every time I hear that I flinch. It's that silly. I thought that line went out with the 1930s."

Must Get Players "What we have to do is get players. The Cleveland farm system is not good. We have a young pitcher or so, particularly Gary Bell at San Diego. You may see him up here soon. After that, we're hurting."

"Hoot Evers and Mike McNally are running the farm system here and they've taken on eight or nine new scouts and I've told them what to tell kids. A kid has to be crazy to go with the Yankees, that's what we tell them. It's true. How can a first baseman sign a Yankee contract when he knows George Weiss has 17 of them lying around? He'll be ancient before he hits the Stadium."

"We're telling every prospect we can find — 'There's only one place to play baseball and that's in the majors. You'll never make it with the Yankees. You have a chance with us.'"

"You've got to do something on your own. But there is one bit of legislation I want. That's the thing I've always yelled about — a team must get waivers on a player before he can be optioned back to the minors."

"Look at Throneberry. The Yankees sent him back three times. He could have been playing any place. This year they sent John Blanchard, the catcher, back. He could stick with 14 or 15 clubs. That's a crime."

Citadel Tourney Listed Dec. 19-20

CHARLESTON, S. C. (UPI) —

The Citadel, a newcomer to collegiate basketball's big time, will play host next December to two major independents and a Southeastern Conference team in the first Citadel Invitational Tournament.

Athletic director Eddie Teague announced the University of Miami, Fla., Florida State University, and the University of Georgia, have accepted invitations to play in a two-day tournament with The Citadel next Dec. 19-20.

The Citadel, which won only three basketball games in 1955-56, was voted the most improved team in the nation in 1956-57 after coach Norman Sloan took over the job of rebuilding the Citadel's basketball fortunes.

Last season, The Citadel won 16 and lost 11, and was the champion of the Senior Bowl Tournament at Mobile, Ala. All members of Sloan's first two teams at the military college will be back for 1958-59.

Musial Never Made Enemy In Big Time

By BOB CONSIDINE
NEW YORK (UPI) — Even more incredible than Stan Musial's achievement of making 3,000 hits is the fact that he has played 17 years in the majors without making a single enemy. It is unlikely that he was ever booed.

Cobb once said that one of the great "thrills" of his life in baseball came the day he appeared at the Polo Grounds (before the Yankee Stadium was built) hard on the heels of being misquoted about the beanball killing of Ray Chapman by Carl Mays. The reporter quoted Cobb as saying that Chapman should have had sense enough to duck, or words to that effect.

"There must have been 30,000 in the stands, waiting for me," Cobb said years later. "They spotted me as I came out of the lockerroom in center field and let me have it all the way to the bench. It was probably the greatest boo I or anybody else ever got."

Williams Most Booed
Ted Williams is probably the most booed active player, though Mickey Mantle gets his share. But both arouse nothing in the way of booing as compared to Babe Ruth. It seems hard to believe, looking back on that colossal talent, that fans took a delight in booing Ruth. They did so to such a degree that his great good friend, Frank Buck O'Neill, then of the New York Journal, wrote a reprimand that remains a classic of the sports page.

Buck wrote:
"Burn down Faneuil Hall. Spit on the American flag. Tear up the Bill of Rights. But don't boo Babe Ruth!"

Babe Sensitive
Babe, like all the others, was sensitive to the jeers, though he knew that some of it came from jerks trying to show off to others in the stand. In his book, which Fred Lieb and I helped him with near the end of his life, Babe wrote:

"I wanted to stay in baseball more than I ever wanted any thing in my life."

"But in 1935 there was no job for me, and that embittered me. I came to think that the greatest cartoon I had ever seen was one drawn at that time by Burrus Jenkins of the New York Journal American, showing me walking down the road that leads away from the Yankee Stadium. Burrus portrayed me in a ragged uniform, fat and elderly. A road marker, reading 'To Oblivion,' or something like that, pointed the way. At my heels snapped a lot of dogs, marked with such signs as 'Jeering Fans' and so forth. In the background was the Yankee Stadium, labeled, 'The House That Ruth Built!'"

Nobody Resents Stan
Nobody resents Stan Musial's salary or his wonderful success on and off the diamond. Joe Cronin was telling us last week about some of the industriousness with which Stan attacks the off-diamond role. Joe told of watching Stan play a double-header in the blazing heat of St. Louis one Sunday last year.

"He must have been on base eight or nine times," Joe said. "After the game, the party I was in began wondering where to eat. Then somebody said, 'Let's try Musial's place.' So we went there in a taxi right away. The place was jammed. The headwaiter asked us to wait at the bar. Well, we were standing there and I happened to notice that you could see into the office from that point."

"There was Stan in there, looking fresh as a kid in a white sports jacket, sitting at his desk and taking reservations over the phone."

Wonderful, clean man, Stan. The fans have a special niche for him.

Marlene Hagge Wins Sky Open

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Marlene Hagge is $401 richer today because she didn't let the pressure bother her in the final round of the 54-hole Land of the Sky Women's Open Golf Tournament. The pro from Del Ray Beach, Fla., was one stroke behind Jo Ann Prentice of Birmingham, Ala., on the 18th hole Sunday.

Mrs. Hagge made it in par 4 while Miss Prentice took a 5. That gave each a three-round total of 213. Marlene shot her final round in 3-under-par 71, while Jo Ann had 75.

In the sudden death 'playoff,' Marlene's second shot was a fine 6-iron to four feet from the pin, and she sank her putt for a birdie 3. Jo Ann had a par 4 that earned her second money of $601 of the $5,000 purse.

Tied for third at 218, good for $419, were defending champion Beverly Hanson of Indio, Calif.; Wilfrid Smith of St. Clair Shores, Mich.; and Fay Crocker of Montevideo, Uruguay.

Rush Content To Let Work Do Talking

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Braves' Bob Rush apparently is content to let his pitching be the retort to uncomplimentary remarks supposedly made by his former manager, Bob Scheffing of the Cubs.

Rush beat Chicago 5-2 in the second game of a doubleheader. The Cubs took the first game 1-0 behind Taylor Phillips, who went from the Braves to Chicago in the same deal last winter.

Rush 4 And 2
Each registered his first victory over his former teammates. Rush now has won 4 and lost 2 while Phillips has a perfect 3-0 slate.

"I didn't get any special satisfaction out of beating the Cubs," Rush said. "The only satisfaction I got is beating Scheffing."

The 6-4½, 205-pound right-hander didn't elaborate, but it was plain he still remembered statements attributed to Scheffing this spring in Mesa, Ariz. At that time Scheffing was quoted as saying Rush had never been a good pitcher for the Cubs.

Wants No Beef
"I don't want to start a beef with Scheffing," said the 32-year-old Rush, who won 110 games for the Cubs over a 10-year span.

"I'd just as soon not even discuss what he said. I have nothing against the Cubs' organization or the players. They treated me fairly."

Over in the Cubs' clubhouse, Scheffing claimed he had been misquoted in Mesa.

"All I said was he wasn't a good pitcher for us last year," he said. Asked what he thought of Rush's eight-hitter, Scheffing replied:

"He looked great out there. He pitched a great game. But, then so did Phillips."

Campanella Pleased With Boxing Offer

NEW YORK (AP) — A new life dawned for Roy Campanella today.

The ex Dodger Catcher and three-time Most Valuable Player in the National League was lifted out of bed and placed in a wheelchair for the first time since his tragic automobile accident. Jan. 23 left him paralyzed from the waist down.

His playing days over, Campanella not only found himself off his back, but all set to take up a new job offered to him by New York's Gov. Averell Harriman.

The state's chief executive looked in on Campanella Sunday and told him that an $8,000-a-year post as deputy boxing commissioner was his for the asking.

"His face lit up and he said he had always been interested in boxing and would be glad to take on the job," reported Gov. Harriman.

The governor said Campanella can start the job right now while undergoing treatment at the New York University-Bellevue Medical Center if he desires.

"A minimum effort on the part of Roy is tantamount to a maximum contribution to boxing," Gov. Harriman added. "He will give the public a guarantee of honest boxing."

Gov. Harriman, once an ardent Dodger fan, said Campanella "as fit as I've ever seen him," except for the fact that his neck is in a brace to prevent further injury to his spine.

Dr. Donald A. Covall, assistant director of the department treating Campanella reported a "limited locomotion of both arms."

No Center Jump Held In Wyoming Contest

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — Ever hear of a basketball game without a center jump to open either the first or second half?

It happened at Laramie last season when Oklahoma City University played Wyoming.

As the game was about to begin, Referee Marty Nash called a technical foul against the Oklahomaans for having a uniform number higher than 55.

When the teams reported for the second half, Nash announced a technical foul against Wyoming because of remarks Coach Ev Shelton made to him in the corridor between the halves.

Thus, each half started with a free throw instead of the center tipoff. Oklahoma City won the game 89-71.

City Rec Leaguers Open Season Today

Eighth-Inning Rally Gives Hermanettes Twinbill Split

The Old German Hermanettes developed a five-run, first-inning, runner in their red sox yesterday in the opening game of a twin bill but came back and sewed up the second game with a three-run outburst in the eighth inning for a split in the doubleheader against Elizabeth, (Pa.) on the Penny diamond.

The locals, after losing the opener, 6-1, came back with a three-run rally in the top of the extra-inning eighth and withstood a two-run uprising by the host club in the home eighth for a 4-3 triumph.

In the lidlifter, Elizabeth chased across five runs in the first inning with two-run doubles by Danielson and Morino featuring the attack. Nancy (1st Rod) Belt, "Ducky" Lease, Rose Bowers and Annabelle Leatherman picked up the four singles the locals were able to get off the slants of Conroy.

The lone Hermanette tally came in the second on a walk to Carol Hardman, an error and Belt's one-bagger.

Hardman's single, scoring two runs, was the big blow in the eighth as Rose Bowers registered the victory while fanning three and walking five. Cora Leatherman had the only extra-base hit of the day for the Hermanettes with a double in the second game.

Orioles Sign NC State Ace

BALTIMORE (AP) — Bob Kennel, 22-year-old catcher from North Carolina State College, signed a minor league baseball contract for a bonus today with the Baltimore Orioles.

The amount of the bonus was not disclosed. But Jim McLaughlin, Oriole farm director, said it was "of sufficient size to put him in the bonus category under the old rules of baseball."

The major leagues revoked this year the rule that players receiving more than $4,000 in bonus must remain two years with the major club or be made free agents.

Kennel signed a Louisville, Ky., team contract, but will report to Knoxville, Tenn., in the Sally League June 4 after his graduation.

Kennel, from New Bern, N.C., bats from the left side and throws with his right arm. He hit .304 for North Carolina State.

Irregular Bid Leads To Woe By OSWALD JACOBY Written for NEA Service

When the top players of the country get together for rubber bridge almost anything can and does happen. Every one is so anxious to fix his opponents that many bids are made that have no place in a proper bridge game. Sometimes they work and sometimes they don't.

Today's hand shows one that didn't.

North started the ball rolling with his irregular no-trump response. He didn't want his non-vulnerable opponents to get together on spades if they had that suit.

East stuck in a cream puff double and South promptly redoubled. West bid a conservative two spades, whereupon North and South worked their way into five diamonds.

West doubled and North redoubled and it was up to West to SALISBURY (AP)—A summer of work will interrupt the "world brotherhood" tour of an Eastern Shoreman and his German friend.

Rohn Engh, 28-year-old traveler from nearby Ocean City and his companion, Rudy Thuru, 23, of Hamburg, Germany, will manage a rooming house in Ocean City.

Come fall, they'll shove off on their round-the-world trip via a motorcycle and guitar.

The motor vehicle is a means of transport. The guitar is used as an ice-breaker among strange peoples.

"We just sing and play. The people listen and invite us to their homes for dinner and even a night's lodging."

Engh, a former college student here, said he and Thuru are making the trip on a shoestring because they regard it as an "exploration of brotherhood."

"More people are ready to accept you when you come into their country with only friendliness and a song," he said.

Traveling with Engh and Thuru is Bubbu, a four-year-old red Nigerian monkey. They picked up Bubbu last summer when an accident in Africa interrupted their world trip. Engh fell down a cliff while chasing monkeys and suffered a broken hip.

Up to that time, they had traveled on the motorcycle in Europe and several areas of Africa. They met in Hamburg where Engh was just getting out of school and Thuru was returning home from a trip to India.

The trio visited here a couple of days this week before going on to nearby Ocean City for the summer. They just finished "monkey-ing around" in New York for about six weeks where they appeared on television several times, playing with the monkey and singing their folk songs. While there they lined up a lecture tour and some possible recording work to help augment their traveling income.

They also ran afoul of the law in New York. And all because of Bubbu.

"The poor animal got excited when he saw caged monkeys in Central Park," Engh said. Passersby joined in the three-hour chase to recapture Bubbu and at the height of it, a policeman gave them a ticket for having a wild animal at large.

Engh and Thuru, both bearded, appeared in court the following day where a kindly magistrate dismissed them with a warning to keep their pet on a stronger chain.

Bubbu also caused some concern in a Philadelphia restaurant where a waitress wouldn't serve the long-tailed monkey. Bubbu, it seems, is unfriendly towards women.

Tangier Isle Has Dentist, Physician

TANGIER ISLAND, Va. (AP)—This picturesque island in Chesapeake Bay now has a temporary dentist, thanks to its full-time doctor.

Dr. Barney Blevins of the Virginia State Health Department has arrived on the island for a 40-day stay, largely through the efforts of Dr. Mikio Kato.

Dr. Kato came here last year from Kobe, Japan, agreeing to serve as physician for the 1,100 inhabitants of the five-mile finger of land. He has since agreed to stay another year.

Dr. Blevins, who set up portable equipment at the island's modern medical center, will devote his time exclusively to school children from the seventh grade down. Various organizations on the island raised funds to help finance the project.

The Virginia Council on Health and Medical Care, which originally procured Dr. Kato's services, is attempting to find a full-time dentist for the island.

Americans Seek Homes In Australia

Country Welcomes Migrants Hoping To Start New Life

MELBOURNE (AP)—More and more Americans are looking to Australia as a land of opportunity.

This is a change. For until recently high living standards in the United States made it difficult for migration—keen Australia to interest more than a handful of Americans in settling here.

More than a million migrants since the war included only 13,000 U. S. citizens.

America's recession seems to be changing the picture.

Letters of inquiry about living and working conditions have begun pouring in from all parts of the United States, mainly from skilled workers. And that's the kind of migrant Australia is most interested in.

Australian Immigration Minister Alexander Downer says: "We'll be happy to welcome as many skilled American migrants as we can get."

Australia offers American migrants nearly $110 each toward their fare and a proportionate amount for children.

Noel Curphy, general manager of the Victorian Chamber of Manufacturers, asserts: "We must take advantage of unemployment in North America. To many in America and Canada, Australia offers more stability of employment and a greater future security than any other country."

Production Of FBI Story Worked Out

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—How can they get a movie out of "The FBI Story"?

The question arises because the Don Whitehead best-seller offered a wealth of fascinating material but no story line. It presented problems when Warner Brothers bought the book to make into a movie.

The problems were solved, according to James Stewart, who stars the film soon.

"I'll play a fictional FBI agent who participates in a number of cases over the years," he explained. "J. Edgar Hoover will actually figure very little in the story."

Mervyn Leroy will produce and direct the film, which starts next month. It will be shot in various parts of the country at the scenes of famous FBI cases.

What's it worth to get frightened to death? One scare film offers a $1,000 policy on the lives of those who see it. Another horror epic, opening in Hollywood at the same time, says that 12 insurance firms refused to underwrite it. Patrons must see it at their own risk.

Does all this confirm what observers have claimed—that the movie business is pretty frightening?... Kirk Douglas goes in for plenty of shock in his big production of "The Vikings." Tony Curtis has a hand sliced off by a mad king. Rafel Trujillo tells a television audience that he loves Kim Novak hawk. Ernest Borgnine falls into a pit of ravenous wolves and a pretty maid is used as a target for hatchet throwers. It's a top-notch adventure if you can stand the blood.
